Occasionally we have a pup of outstanding quality for which we would like to retain breeding rights, in the case of a female for up to two litters. The dog would be held in co-ownership until the obligation would be fulfilled at which time we would sign off of the co-ownership. In the case of a male dog, would you be willing to allow us a set amount of stud services to be agreed upon at the time of purchase. Would you be interested in a situation such as this?
